Beauty-Tox: the celebrities' pamper facial

NOT SO LONG AGO, the first tell-tale signs of ageing – wrinkles around the eyes, mouth and neck could only be erased with surgery. Now, new high-tech facials not only keep skin in optimum youthful condition for longer but also reduce existing lines and wrinkles.

One of the newest and most effective is Beauty-Tox which uses pulsed oxygen pressure, special cosmetic formulations and pure oxygen to 'shoot' the anti-ageing cocktail deep into the epidermis. The high concentration of the relaxing ingredient used reduces the muscle contractions responsible for forming lines and wrinkles on the forehead, around the eyes and around the mouth.

Beauty-Tox is available at Janet Ginning Salon – one of the favourite day spas for celebrities, such as Elle Macpherson and Caprice, in London's Mayfair. It's a five-phase treatment which results in beautifully refreshed and radiant skin.

The experience begins with a relaxing massage with Nora Bode Cleansing Milk or Cream to remove all traces of make up and impurities. Nora Bode Toners are then 'spritzed' over the face, neck and décolleté to rebalance the skin's pH and its moisture level.

Exfoliation is the next step. For the ultimate in smooth skin, the skin is exfoliated using either OXYcrystal Microdermabrasion or the Nora Bode Enzyme Exfoliating Cream. Microdermabrasion with oxygen is the perfect non-invasive advanced skin smoothing system revealing fresher, purified skin gently calmed with oxygen.

The Nora Bode Beauty-Tox Ultra Treatment is now applied to the skin and, using pure pulsed oxygen pressure, is transported deep into its basal layers.

Regular visitor Elle Mcpherson

Special attention is given to areas of concern such as frown lines or crow's feet. To rejuvenate and hydrate the skin, a calming oxygen massage is given using the OXYspray technique with Nora Bode Oxyfluid.

Collagen eye pieces are then applied and activated to regain a youthful look in the problematic eye area. A full mask is then applied to the face and left on for 10 to 15 minutes. During this time, a combination of oxygen and aromatherapy oils is inhaled, revitalising the inner body and maximising the treatment's benefits.

To complete the experience, the specially formulated Nora Bode Beauty-tox Homecare products are applied. The treatment continues at home with twice-daily applications of prescribed Nora Bode products to sustain and enhance the new look.

The results are impressive: this gentle alternative to cosmetic injections relaxes facial muscles to smooth out expression lines and stimulates collagen production, reducing wrinkle depth and firming and lifting the skin as well as firming, smoothing and defining lip contours. The treatment naturally rejuvenates the skin to bring back a youthful glow and give a complete 'well-being experience' without risk or side effects. It is needle-free, gentle, effective and safe.

Treatments last between 75 and 90 minutes and cost from $197 (£110, €149) They are available nationwide and at Janet Ginnings, 45 Curzon Street, Mayfair, London W1. Call + 44 (0)20 7499 2767. Enquiries + 44 (0)1775 722243.

THE MIDDLE GROUND

The centre parting has moved on from its 'Neil-from-The-Young-Ones' status and become the hottest new look for hair. 'A centre part makes a bold but sexy statement and is great for elongating a rounder face,' explains leading catwalk stylist, Guido Palau.

HOW TO GET IT RIGHT:

1. Comb wet hair back and let it fall into place.
2. Define it in the middle by using the handle end of a tail comb.
3. Keep stray hairs in check with Redken Quick Dry 18 Instant Finishing Spray, £8.75.

4 of the best tummy flattening treatments

Whether you've the time or cash to spend in a beauty salon or want a home treatment, try one of these bloat-busters...

1 OXYJet's new BodySlim treatment, £82
Janet Ginnings (020 7499 1904). Uses a soya plant extract with fat-mobilising benefits, pushed into skin using a shot of oxygen to make it work faster. Guarantees inch-loss after one treatment. Not based on fluid loss, so results last longer.

2 Try Sanctuary Spa's new Trim & Tone Body Wrap, £24.99 Based on the famous spa's most popular treatment. Contains white clay and botanical extracts, smoothed on to tummy before wrapping in bandages for 20-30 mins. Loss is around 5cm per treatment, which can be done once or twice a week. Available at Boots.

3 Skin-firming cream won't work miracles overnight but make skin softer by using one and starting a detox process to help you reach your flat-tum goal. Try St Ives Firming Body Lotion, £3.99 or Nivea's My Silhouette, £11.99 which has white tea and arise extract, helping boost circulation and improve skin texture.

4 Gerard's Green Tea Abdomen Treatment, £50 is designed to beat fluid retention and relax the colon, lessening the blockages that cause bloating. The mask leaves skin super soft. Call 020 8202 2020 or see www.gerards.uk.com for more info.

crowding fears: Stratford station may not cope

Auditors demand bill 'as matter of urgency'

BY ROSS LYDALL

THE row over the soaring cost of the London Olympics is set to intensify with new criticism over the Government's failure to publish a final budget.

On Friday the National Audit Office will demand as "a matter of urgency" a financial package outlining how much public money will be ploughed into the 2012 preparations.

The NAO report will assess whether the Games can provide value for money in return for the huge investment being made.

Mayor Ken Livingstone yesterday valued the total Olympics cost at £5.1 billion — £2.3 billion original budget funded by the Lottery and council tax, plus £1.9 billion of Government regeneration cash and a £900 million rise in costs outlined by Culture Secretary Tessa Jowell in November.

Last week the Commons culture select committee called on Chancellor Gordon Brown to "put his hand in his pocket" and pay a fair share of the rising costs. It also said a cap should be placed on the amount Londoners are contributing.

The NAO report will examine whether the financial projections for the Games were mishandled by civil servants, and whether Whitehall departments will be able to keep a grip on the budget in the run-up to 2012.

Auditors are also "sceptical" about the Chancellor's wish for a 66 per cent contingency fund to be built into the final budget. This could add a further £2 billion to the top-line costs.

The outline of the "official" £2.3 billion publicly-funded budget — including £625 million from London council taxpayers — was set by the Mayor and Ms Jowell. It followed two reports commissioned by the Government.

Yesterday Mr Livingstone said the 12.5p tax the Treasury receives from £1 Lottery tickets and the profits from selling public land around the Olympic park in Stratford after 2012 would cover any increased costs. An average household in the capital is paying £20 a year until 2018 for the Games — under the deal between the Mayor and the Government, over-runs have to be shared between Londoners and the Lottery.

TREATMENT OF THE WEEK

BEAUTY-TOX FACIAL

Want perfect skin for your Christmas parties? I went to see expert Janet Ginnings for a beauty-tox facial. This luxury treatment – which Elle Macpherson is a fan of – includes a gentle oxygen exfoliation. Next, a blend of vitamins are pressure-injected into any lines and wrinkles, using an oxygen wand and bio-light. Then I was given collagen eye patches, a reviving mint mask and my skin was rehydrated with an intensive moisturiser. By the time Janet had finished, my face was glowing.
